

ONCIX

OFFICE OF THE NATIONAL COUNTERINTELLIGENCE EXECUTIVE

The Office of the National Counterintelligence Executive (ONCIX) is staffed by senior counterintelligence (CI) and other specialists drawn from across the national security community and assists the NCIX in carrying out her statutory responsibility as head of U.S. Counterintelligence. Organizationally located in the office of the Director of Central Intelligence (DCI), the ONCIX staff, drawing on inputs from all elements of the counterintelligence community, prepares annual foreign intelligence threat assessments and other CI analysis, develops an annual national CI strategy, sets priorities for CI collection, investigations, and operations and coordinates development of CI program budgets in accordance with strategic priorities. The ONCIX also produces espionage damage assessments, develops CI training policy and provides foreign intelligence threat information to the private sector.